VI. Read the passage and answer the following

When Abraham Linchon was President of UnitedStates, there was a war between the North and South of the States. Once a young solider named William Scott was found asleep at his post and was likely to be shot. When Abraham Linchon heard of this, he was troubled and sent for the solider, who was a little more than a boy. He asked him many questions and learnt that Scott had been on a march of over twenty miles that day. A fellow solider, a friend of his, had fallen ill, so Scott had offered to take his place as sentry for the night. As he was very tired he had fallen asleep. He was not afraid to die but did not want his mother to know how he died. As President Linchon listened to the story, tears came to his eyes and he said,” you have suffered for a friend. You are a good solider. You may return your regiment”.
